

Clarity

One of the fruits of spiritual practice is clarity, seeing things just as they are. Less coloured by self-interest and personal predicaments, one's views are more objective and one has less need to rely on the views of others for a kind of second-hand objectivity.

Sangharakshita, Living Ethically, p. 20

©Windhorse Publications

www.windhorsepublications.com