

NEW INITIATIVE ON CLIMATE ACTION WITHIN TRIRATNA

Have you heard about the new Triratna-wide Climate Emergency Initiative that is getting underway? The aim of this initiative is for those of us who are keen to do so to work together in three broad ways:

- 1) Changing the institutions and practices of our movement to become more climate-friendly
- 2) Encouraging 'inner practices' that can be of benefit, such as rituals, meditation etc.
- 3) Changing the world around us by taking bold steps that will help keep fossil fuels in the ground.

The first step to doing these three things is to build our 'movement' within the movement of Triratna by reaching out to others who are interested and organising.

The first step in that direction is a short survey (below). It asks people what specific actions they would like to undertake under each of the broad headings mentioned above. It also asks for their contact details. The idea is to group people together who want to work on similar things, probably with others in similar locations.

If a lot of people fill out this survey this will generate a contacts list and the basis for action. The next step after that will be to hold video calls for people interested in working on the same actions.

Please could you take the following steps?

- 1) Complete the survey yourself?
(Many thanks to those who have already done so!)
- 2) Ask as many people as possible in Triratna to complete it as well.

Asking people personally is the most effective way to do this, either in person, over the phone or by email. Simply sharing it on Facebook is much less effective.

Many thanks!
